Brief soccer bio:

I am an ex-professional player that is currently very passionate about coaching in youth soccer. My aspiration is to help develop good soccer players and to serve as a good example of values and attitudes that one must have to become a complete athlete. I bring with me experience from local Canadian youth and professional clubs, as well as experience from various European clubs.

Coaching Philosophy:

Ideally, I always try to play attacking minded soccer, but I recognize that adaption to team's qualities is really important. I encourage players to take risk and enjoy themselves on the field. At the same time, I believe that hard work and good discipline is key to player development.
